Pope NYC visit largest security challenge ever

Police. Mayor Bill de Blasio and Police Commissioner Bill Bratton said the city is prepared to welcome Pope Francis.

More than 50 public and private agencies met Monday morning at NYPD headquarters to prepare for the worst ahead of Pope Francis' visit to New York City next week, which Police Commissioner Bill Bratton said will likely be the largest security challenge in the city's history.

Law enforcement officers and agency officials spent the morning at 1 Police Plaza in a "table-top exercise" that prepared for two hypothetical active shooters — one at a hospital and the other at a train station — a power outage and a building collapse on Cliff Street.

"We believe that this event is going to be the largest security challenge the city and this department has ever faced," Bratton said at an afternoon press conference.

of Thursday, Sept. 25, and is scheduled to say an evening prayer at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

On Friday, Sept. 26, Francis will address the U.N. General Assembly, hold an interfaith service at the 9/11 memorial, visit an East Harlem school, take a motorcade through Central Park and officiate Mass at Madison Square Garden. He leaves for Philadelphia early Saturday, Sept. 27.

The pope's arrival coincides with the 70th United Nations General Assembly — with about 170, or 90 percent, of the world's leaders set to attend.

Mayor Bill de Blasio, who observed part of the training, said the pope's "unprecedented visit" will be "fuel for the constant betterment of our city for years and years to come," and that the NYPD "has been through it all and is ready for it all."

De Blasio also urged New Yorkers to be patient with the numerous street closures and other changes that are expected next week.

"Of course, there will be street closures, there will be inconveniences ... [but] New Yorkers are tough and resilient, we can handle it.

... We know what it is to be a capital of the world," de Blasio said.

The U.S. Secret Service is the leading security agency for the pope's visit. Robert Sica, head of the New York office of the Secret Service, offered few details on the pope's travel paths and what kind of vehicle he will be traveling in.

Sica did say the Secret Service will be building a security wall for the pontiff's Central Park visit, and the pope will be traveling as he is accustomed to in Italy and on other international trips.

Bratton said the NYPD has been working with the archdiocese and papal representatives to balance Pope Francis' desire to get close to people and safety.

"We are very comfortable that we are going to meet all sets of needs in a very safe [way]," Bratton said.

De Blasio, Bratton and other law enforcement officials also toured vehicles that will be used for the pope's security and took a look at cameras and explosive and radiation-detecting devices.

Bratton said there was not a final count of officers for the pope's visit, which is expected to be in the thousands, or a final price tag.

WTC guard slashes man who threw french fries: NYPD

Unhappy meal.

The 55-year-old guard was on duty.

Police took a World Trade Center security guard into custody early Monday morning after he allegedly slashed a man who tossed french fries at him at a lower Manhattan McDonald's.

Police said a 20-year-old man was throwing fries at the 55-year-old on-duty security guard while at the McDonald's at 160 Broadway.

A McDonald's manager told DNAinfo that a group of teens were antagonizing the guard and "placed" the fries on his head.

After leaving the store, the security guard allegedly slashed the man in the chest and face before running away.

The victim ran to Fulton Center and called police. After canvassing the area, police apprehended the security guard at Church and Vesey streets.

The 20-year-old victim was taken to Bellevue Medical Center in stable condition. The security guard was treated for a split lip at New York-Presbyterian, Lower Manhattan Hospital.

He was in custody but had not yet been charged, police said late Monday morning.

MTA. Drunk driver takes bus for joyride

An MTA driver decided to have a little fun on his day off Sunday and took a city bus out for a weekend drive on Long Island — all while allegedly drunk.

A Farmingdale trooper, after receiving several calls about a NYC transit bus driving erratically on the Northern State Parkway in Nassau County, pulled over Alexander Copeland, 52, of Medford, New York, about 2:20 p.m., cops said.

Police detected the smell of alcohol on Copeland's breath and administered a sobriety test, which measured more than double the legal limit at .20 percent.

Copeland, who was not authorized to drive the bus at the time of his joyride, was charged with reckless endangerment, unauthorized use of a vehicle without owners consent, aggravated DWI and traffic violations.

The transit employee has been with the MTA as a driver since 1998 and was suspended without pay, according to WABC. He still faces more disciplinary action.

Man with knife sought in deli attack

A man who tried to steal from behind a Brooklyn deli counter ended up threatening a clerk with a pocketknife before running off, police said.

Authorities are looking for the suspect, who on Sept. 7 at around 9 p.m. walked into a deli on Fulton Street in Bedford-Stuyvesant.

Described by investigators as a white man in his early 20s, the unidentified man was caught on surveillance video walking behind the counter and grappling with the clerk before waving a knife at him.

The man is described as 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighing about 160 pounds with short, blond hair. CHESTER SORIA

World Maker Faire Spotlight. An inventor's quest to make technology more transparent

Each week this month, Metro highlights an inventor who will be featured at World Maker Faire 2015. This week, we talked with Sam Blanchard, 36, from Blacksburg, Virginia.

What are you showcasing at World Maker Faire this year?

SeeMore is a kinetic sculpture and parallel computer made of 256 Raspberry Pi's, which are small, functional computers that show what's going on inside as they perform tasks, such as Google searches.

How did you come up with the idea?

My collaborator Kirk Cameron, a professor of computer science himself, explained that there was a challenge in communicating the abstract nature of his field. The outcome, a mash-up of art and science, pulls inspiration from early supercomputing, fluid simulations and funnel clouds.

Did anything surprising happen while you were developing it?

It was developed in two teams working side by side, one art-based and the other computer science-based. I was surprised to see the similarities in our processes.

What are you working on next?

Because SeeMore is a computer and as such capable of an infinite number of tasks, we want to integrate an input system through Twitter that would allow the viewer to interact, perform searches, ask questions and so on.

Is there anyone at World Maker Faire you're excited to meet?

Eben Upton, founder of Raspberry Pi Foundation, of course!

What invention do you think would change the world?

A.I., because we all need someone to blame for our screwups.

Meet Sam Blanchard at World Maker Faire at the New York Hall of Science Sept. 26 & 27.

Mother charged in death of toddler found in park swing

The mother of a Maryland toddler is facing manslaughter and other charges after police found her pushing the boy's body in a park swing four months ago, authorities said on Monday.

A grand jury indicted

Romechia Simms, 24, of La Plata in the May death of her 3-year-old son, Ji'Aire Lee, according to a statement from State's Attorney Anthony Covington.

Simms was arrested Saturday on charges of first-degree child abuse, manslaughter and child neglect. She will be arraigned on Monday.

The boy died of dehydration and hypothermia, according to Charles County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Diane Richardson.

Officers found the boy at about 7 a.m. on May 22 after witnesses reported seeing a woman pushing a child on a swing for an unusually long time at a park in La Plata, about 35 miles south of Washington, Richardson said.

When the officers arrived they found Simms still pushing the child and realized immediately that he was dead.

The boy and his mother had been at the park since Wednesday morning, Richardson said. Police found them on Friday.

The boy was alive on Wednesday when he was placed in the swing where he stayed until police found him, Richardson said.

The county clerk from Kentucky who was jailed after refusing to issue marriage licenses to gay couples said Monday on her return to work that she will not block her deputies from issuing them but will not authorize them personally, as one couple celebrated a coming marriage.

Shannon and Carmen Wampler-Collins received a marriage license late Monday morning from a deputy clerk as friends and family gathered in the clerk's office chanted "love has won" and demonstrators opposed to gay marriage shouted in the background.

The couple, now 45 and 46 years old, respectively, had a commitment ceremony 20 years ago and have two sons. They legally changed their name years ago.

Rowan County Clerk Kim Davis, who has said her beliefs as an Apostolic Christian prevent her from issuing marriage licenses to same-sex couples, was jailed for five days earlier this month for refusing to comply with a judge's order to issue licenses in line with a Supreme Court ruling in June that made gay marriage legal across the United States.

Before the county office opened, Davis said she doubted the validity of the licenses to be issued and told a news conference they would not carry her name, title or authorization.

Davis said she would take no action against deputy clerks who issued licenses but does not believe they have the authority to do so. The license given to the couple said it was being issued under a federal court order.

A lawyer for Davis, Harry Mibet, said her attorneys plan to file a lawsuit this week asking a state court judge to force Kentucky Governor Steve Beshear to make an accommodation for Davis. REUTERS

Air Force still evaluating options for F-35 'block buy'

The U.S. Air Force said it is still examining a possible "block buy" that the Pentagon hopes to put together to lower the cost of U.S. and foreign military purchases of Lockheed Martin's F-35 fighter jet in coming years.

Air Force acquisition chief William LaPlante said the U.S. military services and international partners are studying options for such a deal, which would pool planned purchases over a number of years to benefit from larger economies of scale and drive down the price of the new stealth fighter. REUTERS

Police kill suspect after Kentucky trooper fatally shot

The suspect wanted in the fatal shooting of a rookie Kentucky state trooper this weekend has died after being shot by authorities, state police said on Monday. Kentucky State Police found the suspect, Joseph Thomas Johnson-Shanks, 25, of Missouri, in a wooded area close to Interstate 24, near where he allegedly shot the trooper after a car chase, police said.

Johnson-Shanks had aimed his gun at troopers and refused to drop it, leading one to shoot him, officials said. Johnson-Shanks died at a medical center in Princeton, Kentucky. REUTERS

Apple said that advance orders of its new iPhones were on pace to beat the 10 million units the previous versions logged in their first weekend last year, a feat that analysts attributed to the inclusion of sales from China.

The Chinese debut of the prior models, the iPhone 6 and 6 Plus, was delayed last year as the company awaited approval from regulators. Many analysts say China is poised to overtake the United States as Apple's biggest market. REUTERS

A spokesman for the Lake County Sheriff's Office, Lieutenant Steve Brooks, confirmed the fire fatality but provided no details about the victim's identity or the circumstances of the death.

The so-called Valley Fire, which erupted Saturday afternoon and spread quickly to a cluster of small communities in the hills and valleys north of the Napa Valley wine country, has forced thousands of

THE ANCIENTS UNDERSTOOD that music has the power to heal. In fact, the Chinese word for medicine comes from the word for music. # University professor killed in Mississippi, fellow instructor sought

Murder. The shooting left students and staff on edge for several hours as police locked down the school.

A geography and social science instructor at Cleveland, Mississippi's Delta State University was named a "person of interest" in the fatal campus shooting of a history professor on Monday, police said.

Authorities said they were searching for university employee Shannon Lamb in connection with the killing of Ethan Schmidt, an assistant professor of American history who was gunned down in a campus building.

Cleveland Police Chief Charles "Buster" Bingham said at an afternoon news conference that authorities did not believe Lamb was still on the campus, which is near the Arkansas-Mississippi state line.

"We're not taking anything lightly," he added.

Bingham would not comment on Lamb's possible connection to Schmidt.

The chief said investigators were looking into the possibility that Lamb was involved in an earlier homicide in Gautier, a town five to six hours south of Delta State on the Mississippi Gulf coast.

Gautier police detective Matt Hoggatt told CNN that police responding to the scene of a shooting reported there shortly after 10 a.m. on Monday found a woman shot and killed.

Delta State officials said no students were injured in the campus shooting, which occurred in Jobe Hall.

All classes were canceled Monday as well as for Tuesday, when events had been planned to commemorate the university's 90th anniversary.

Airman who disarmed gunman in France to receive Purple Heart

Bravery. The medal will be awarded at a ceremony at the Pentagon this week.

A U.S. airman who helped disarm a gunman on a Paris-bound train last month will receive a Purple Heart medal, the Air Force leader said on Monday, in an unusual award of the honor to a serviceman wounded while not in a combat zone.

Spencer Stone, 23, will receive the medal, which is given to troops wounded or killed in action against a U.S. enemy, U.S. Air Force Secretary Deborah James said in remarks at the Air Force Association Conference.

Stone, National Guardsman Alek Skarlatos and Anthony Sadler, a civilian, were vacationing in Europe last month when they saw a gunman on board a train from Amsterdam to Paris armed with a box cutter, a pistol and a Kalashnikov AK-47 assault rifle.

They have said they had no choice but to intervene when the gunman cocked the rifle. Stone, whose thumb was almost severed by the attacker, has been credited with saving the life of another passenger who had been shot.

France awarded the three Americans and a Briton with the country's highest honor, the Legion d'honneur, for helping to disarm the man.

Authorities have identified the gunman as suspected Islamist militant Ayoub el Khazzani, 26, of Morocco. The man's lawyer said he only intended to rob people on board the train because he was hun-

The decision to award Stone the Purple Heart is unusual because his wounds were received in a noncombat setting, although such awards are not unprecedented. REUTERS

No bonus is paid if the account balance is less than $2,500 on the anniversary date. Additional deposits during a given anniversary period do not affect the bonus interest payment. Deposits made to the account on any anniversary date will be used to calculate the lowest account balance for the next anniversary period. The bonus interest is calculated on the lowest balance on deposit from one anniversary date to the next anniversary date. Simple interest rate bonus is subject to change at any time after first anniversary date of account opening. Hypothetical example of how bonus works: Assume an account is opened on January 12, 2015 for $50,000. A $10,000 withdrawal is made on July 12, 2015. No other withdrawals are made prior to the January 12, 2016 anniversary date. The low balance is now $40,000, so $100 in bonus interest will be paid on January 12, 2016.

Border-free Europe unravels as migrant crisis hits record day

Refugees.

Germany's surprise decision to restore border controls had a swift domino effect.

Two decades of frontier-free travel across Europe unraveled on Monday as countries reestablished border controls in the face of an unprecedented influx of migrants, which broke the record for the most arrivals by land in a single day.

Germany's neighbors started to impose checks at their own frontiers as thousands of refugees pressed north and west across the continent while Hungary sealed the main informal border crossing point into the European Union.

A majority of EU interior ministers, meeting in Brussels, agreed in principle to share out 120,000 asylum seekers on top of some 40,000 distributed on a voluntary basis so far, EU president Luxembourg said. But details of the deal, to be formalized on Oct. 8, were vague with several ex-Communist central European states still rejecting mandatory quotas.

Austria said it would dispatch its military to help police carry out checks at the border with Hungary after thousands of migrants crossed on foot overnight, filling up emergency accommoda-

Thousands more raced across the Balkans to enter Hungary before new rules take effect on Tuesday, which Budapest's right-wing government says will bring a halt to the illegal flow of migrants across its territory.

Signatures for condoms-in-porn vote in California

New proposal. It would mandate that state and municipal officials ensure condoms are used on film sets.

"It's only fair that adult film performers be afforded the same safeguards as other Californians in their workplaces." Weinstein

A campaign to require condom use in pornographic film productions in California has submitted enough signatures to election officials before Monday's deadline to put a ballot measure before state voters in 2016, organizers said.

"Unlike most politicians, voters are not squeamish about this issue, seeing it as a means to protect the health and safety of performers," Michael Weinstein, president of AIDS Healthcare Foundation and a backer of the measure, said in a statement.

Organizers said they collected 557,138 signatures from registered voters, more than the 365,880 they needed by Monday for the initiative to be on the ballot in November 2016. The signatures must still be verified within 30 working days by election officials.

In 2012, the foundation successfully backed a voter-approved measure in Los Angeles County to force the use of condoms in local pornographic film shoots.

Porn producers fought that measure in U.S. District Court, arguing it went against their clients' right to freedom of expression. But in December a regional U.S. federal appeals court upheld the requirement.

Much of the U.S. adult movie industry, which is worth an estimated $9 billion to $13 billion a year, is based in Los Angeles, especially its San Fernando Valley suburb. REUTERS

Shoulder Arthritis Treatments Keeping Boomers Active Into Their 60's, 70's Even 80's?

If you suffer with painful shoulder arthritis — science may have finally found the answer you've been looking for.

Here is why: Researchers have discovered a natural gel like medicine that is like "joint oil." This all-natural gel is one of the naturally occurring lubricating substances in your shoulder joint that cushions and lubricates the joint which dries out over time due to wear-and-tear, age or injury. But when doctors precisely place this lubricating gel into your shoulder joint by using advanced digital imaging technology — it is like putting oil on a rusty door hinge. It lubricates the joint and can decrease pain and stiffness. For some, results can be dramatic and last for months. Years for some. Often times shoulder surgery can be avoided.

Know this: This is NOT a supplement you can buy over the counter or on the internet. This is a REAL medical treatment that must be given by a trained health care professional.

And the great news is: There is a free report and information kit available that tells you everything you need to know about this treatment. It also tells you all about cutting-edge medical clinics right here in New York City that are offering this cutting-edge treatment with tremendous success.

To get your information kit or to schedule a No-Obligation Risk Free Shoulder Screening simply call 800-627-PAIN (7246).

Online crime. Kremlin says hackers attacked Putin website

Hackers made a "very powerful" attack on the Kremlin website on Sunday, the Russian government said on Monday.

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov linked the attack to regional elections on Sunday in which the opposition sought to challenge government-allied politicians in the one region it was allowed to run.

Peskov said the election commission's website came under attack on Sunday morning.

"Given that, you will certainly be interested to know that from 5 to 10 a.m. on Sunday a very powerful attack was simultaneously carried out on the Russian president's website," Peskov told reporters.

He said he had no information on who might have been behind the attack.

Russia has a hacking criminal underground and the United States regularly accuses Russian, as well as Chinese, hackers of attacks.

Tom Hardy is done with the sexuality talk

Tom Hardy is really tired of all this talk about quotes he made to a gay magazine back in 2008 that many took as an admission that he's bisexual. Like, really, really tired. Just look at how he reacts to a pesky reporter bringing up the topic once again at the Toronto International Film Festival press conference for his film "Legend," in which he plays twin gangster brothers Ron and Reggie Kray — one of whom is gay. "In the film, your character Ronnie is very open about his sexuality, but given interviews you've done in the past, your own sexuality seems a bit more ambiguous," the reporter asked. "Do you find it hard for celebrities to talk to media about their sexuality?"

What followed was a bit of a tense back and forth, starting with Hardy asking, "What are you on about?" before the journalist tried reiterating the question. "I don't find it difficult for celebrities to talk about their sexuality. Are you asking me about my sexuality?" Hardy asked. "Why?" And then he capped it off with a curt "thank you," so don't let anyone tell you he's not at least polite.

Justin Bieber can't hang

Get this boy a sippy-cup! Justin Bieber, noted for always having something to prove, is facing some public embarrassment for getting schooled by pal Sam Shahidi in a beer-shotgunning contest at a pool party in Las Vegas, and just typing out that sentence means I need to get myself checked for hepatitis C. Never one to shy away from defeat, some people's favorite Canadian posted a video of the challenge to Instagram, dismissing his failure with the caption, "I lost but I didn't go to college." That's his excuse for everything. Also, who drinks Corona out of a can? I mean, come on.

Arnold is hired

We're getting less Donald Trump in our lives in at least one area, as the GOP front-runner is stepping down as host of "Celebrity Apprentice," with Arnold Schwarzenegger set to replace him. No, seriously. "I have always been a huge fan of 'The Celebrity Apprentice' and the way it showcases the challenges and triumphs of business and teamwork," Schwarzenegger said in a statement. "I am thrilled to bring my experience to the boardroom and to continue to raise millions for charity. Let's get started!" Obviously he needed something to do with all that time he'll have not making a sequel to "Terminator: Genisys," but really, Arnold? This is where you want to plant your flag?

Miss America thinks Tom Brady cheated

Miss Georgia Betty Cantrell is the new Miss America, but her crowning was overshadowed by a 31-year-old scandal and a controversial statement regarding Deflategate. Vanessa Williams, named Miss America in 1984, returned to the pageant stage for the first time since a nude photo scandal caused her to resign her crown. Pageant Executive Chairman Sam Haskell offered Williams a belated apology.

As that controversy was extinguished, a new one opened as Cantrell was asked her opinion on the allegations that Tom Brady cheated by using underinflated footballs. "I'm not sure," she answered. "I'd have to see the ball and feel it. If there's any question, then yes, he cheated."

We've seen Elsa from "Frozen" framed as a superhero origin story, but this new re-edit gets to the dark, twisted heart that I personally think lurks within Disney's megahit: Elsa is the villain. I mean, how could she not be? Enough with all the sympathy for a self-banished princess. She plunged her land into perpetual winter! Who does that? Villains, that's who. I'm just glad someone finally said it out loud.

Mindy faces motherhood

Interview. Mindy Kaling says her fictional alter ego hits some bumps learning to be a working mom.

"The Mindy Project" has always been one of those much-loved, less-watched shows, and last spring Fox finally canceled it. Luckily for fans, online streaming service Hulu was on the hunt for original programming and scooped it up. Series creator and star Mindy Kaling says the switch to streaming comes with some perks.

"To not have to worry about what the ratings are the next day, because who knows what the promotion had been for the show, and all those other things, is a nice change," Kaling says. "Being a show creator, it's not just about writing and acting and the side of it that's the art and the creativity. It's about the business, and I have been very focused on that in the last couple of years."

She adds, a little wryly, "That'll be good to take that energy I had worrying about ratings and put it into a different worry."

It's not just behind the scenes that changes are in store. The fictional Mindy Lahiri will be trying to define herself as a mother this season. Says Kaling: "She is such a funny character with so many idiosyncrasies, and to put that towards motherhood has been such a delight."

Kaling says it's been fun to transition from writing about all the different ways to be a "crazy single woman in Manhattan" to trying to figure out how parenting would work between a Catholic man and "an agnostic, Hindu party girl, who doesn't really believe in anything."

The working mom life may challenge Lahiri's assumptions: "Mindy is someone who in the past has been like, the minute I get married, I am stopping working. I'm going to be an insufferable yoga mom with a hot body, and I'm going to be drunk all day. [She's] seeing the reality of what it's like to take care of a baby and a human that you love and trying to balance that with her ambition."

Lahiri won't be an irresponsible parent, though. "We all decided in the [writers] room, the most important thing is we know that she's going to be a good mom. And inherently she is a good person. But she does some really terrible things," says Kaling.

Co-stars

Danny's dance skills

One fan-favorite moment was when Chris Messina, who plays Mindy's beau, Danny, showed off some amazing dance moves. Kaling says they've been "asked so much about his dancing" that "we make a reference to it in a very fun way and address it in a fun way."

So he won't be dancing again, but "he's very multitalented, so we have other things that he does that we're going to be taking advantage of this season."

Neil Patrick Harris is hosting again

Interview. The multi-hyphenate performer is at it again with a whole new type of show.

Neil Patrick Harris — child star, Broadway star, Tony hosting star and, oh, TV star — is trying out something new again. Taking a break from the grind of filming a show every week for a full season of TV, he's now bringing "Best Time Ever with Neil Patrick Harris" to NBC for eight weeks of live shows.

The program is a little hard to categorize, but Harris says he won't be doing too much of the Broadway-style singing people have expected in the past. "I would say more in the Ed Sullivan-y game show host world. There's prizes to give away," he explains. "It's seven or eight different shows all happening simultaneously, but I thrive on compart-

One other planned idea for the show: Harris will have a child version of himself to help out with hosting abilities. Catch the first edition of "Best Time Ever" tonight at 10 p.m. on NBC. / CHRIS HASTON, NBC mentalizing things and being able to show an audience fun things that I think are authentic and enjoyable."

There will be all kinds of talents and competitions on display, from celebrities to unsuspecting participants. "We have people in the audience that don't realize that they've actually been a part of the show for months. We've been following them — they don't realize it — and we'll bring them up onstage and explain to them what's been happening and then give them a trip somewhere," he explains.

Stalking aside, it's going to make for a very unusual show every week. "No week will be the same," Harris promises. "We'll have certain things we do every week, but we'll have certain things that we do every other week. We'll always end the show with something called 'The End of the Show Show,' which is a big giant performance piece."

A few different celebrities have been announced as participants, with both Ricky Martin's and Reese Witherspoon's names being mentioned in connection with the show. Harris says that a big thing they'll be doing with those big names is "putting a celebrity in an uncomfortable situation and then forcing them to interact within it."

Harris is well known for his hosting capabilities, from the Tonys to the Disney Christmas parade, which he promises us was very fun. "I hope that with that reputation of positivity, people will then want to come and set their remote down and be able to enjoy an hour of the show," he says.

LISA WEIDENFELD
@LisaWeidenfeld
lisa.weidenfeld@metro.us

Fan involvement

The element of surprise

One thing Harris was particularly excited about was the authenticity of the show.

"We are in a weird world, because oftentimes the audiences now are coached on how to react to things. So when you cut to an audience reaction and they're cheering wildly, they've been told by a guy that's standing right off camera holding his hands high to cheer really loudly right now," he says.

"What we're doing is creating a show where the audience really may be in the show."

Jena Malone keeps it real

Interview. The "Time Out of Mind" actress had to learn how to ignore Richard Gere.

Jena Malone has been acting since she was a kid, though even her parts back then — "Bastard Out of Carolina," "Stepmom," "Donnie Darko" — tended to be heavy. She's grown even more serious as an adult. In "Time Out of Mind," she has the small but crucial role of Maggie, the estranged daughter of a man (Richard Gere) who's currently homeless.

Maggie is very hostile toward her father. How did you view her anger, which can be extreme? I think I understood her. A lot of people place a lot of blame and judgment on their parents. That's a really normal, human thing. It's partly about breaking away at a young age. It's how you find your own voice. You have to pare down the voices of your parents to find your own, in a weird way.

The film only alludes to what went down with Maggie and her father. Do you go deep on backstory or do you just play the moment?

I came up with my own [backstory]. I thought it'd be more interesting if I had my own ideas of what happened, and Richard had his. There was this competing thing of, "What do you remember? I remember this, you remember that." I think that happens a lot between two people who are upset at each other.

Did you steer clear of Richard during shooting? Sometimes actors do that with other actors.

I only met Richard on set. I met him on film, basically. It was very easy to do my prep work independently and come on the set and feel very comfortable creating. Then Richard and I stayed really far apart from each other, even until the last scene. We didn't really sit down and talk to each other until we were in Toronto.

One more thing

How did this change your view of the homeless?

The worst thing you can do to another human being is know nothing about them. For me what [this film] did was it shattered as much as it mended inside my heart the idea of realizing you have to see all people as people, regardless of their actions.

'DEAR WHITE PEOPLE' DRAWS BLOOD

Satire

Tessa Thompson, left, plays one of the many underrepresented characters in Justin Simien's "Dear White People." ROADSIDE ATTRACTIONS

'Dear White People'

There are razor-sharp points aplenty filed in director Justin Simien's rollicking race dramedy, though its most radical move may simply be the kinds of characters it includes — types who rarely, if ever, make it to the screen. Set at a college where the white populace dwarfs the black students, it gives face time to the gay black nerd (Tyler James Williams), the "angry black woman" (Tessa Thompson) who's secretly into Ingmar Bergman and white boyfriends, and the aspiring YouTube star (Teyonah Parris) acutely aware of her "blackness" to white followers. Simien balances blood-drawing satire with character, and crams his tightly wound debut with both.

Stage adaptation

'Miss Julie'

Liv Ullmann's stab at August Strindberg's most famous play dropped like a rock in last year's Oscar season. Too bad. Along with a lip-smacking turn from Jessica Chastain as the class-straddling aristocrat who covets with the estate's valet (Colin Farrell), it's a full-blooded adaptation that never feels strictly stage-bound, despite having only three actors. (The other is Samantha Morton, as the mousy cook.) Ullmann doesn't play nice, as did the 1951 Swedish film version. Emotions run wild, the actors don't hold back and the whole thing runs wild with a richly messy exploration of class and unbridled lust.

Stallone movie

'First Blood'

In the midst of the "Rocky" saga, Sylvester Stallone found his second franchise superman in John Rambo, a wounded Vietnam vet who finds himself perpetually at war. # Fashion Week makes a splash

Hilfiger throws a pool party

When Gigi Hadid, wearing an itty bitty teenie weenie rainbow-colored knit bikini, led her model squad into a pool at the end of Tommy Hilfiger, the crowd went wild. Not that they weren't already seduced by the Jamaica-inspired set, complete with tiki lodge(!), or by the collection's colorful mesh tanks, floral sundresses and striped bucket hats. RAQUEL LANERI

Prabal Gurung's homage to Nepal

This Fashion Week not one but two shows have featured chanting monks. The first was Givenchy's Marina Abramovic-directed meditation on 9/11. The second, Prabal Gurung's presentation, opened with a dozen Buddhist monks launching into a throaty incantation, a tribute to the victims of the earthquake in the designer's native Nepal.

Gurung, in recent seasons, has shown a tendency to overwork things. Not here: Witness the easy silk pieces streaked with violent crimson, or the floaty closing gowns in warm sunlit shades of golden and deep melon. This was a beautiful, powerful show, a testament to what happens when a designer simply listens to his heart. RL

All the supermodels were at DVF

Clothing aside, all the big models — Karl Lagerfeld, Kendall Jenner, Lily Aldridge, the Hadid sisters, Jourdan Dunn — walked DVF, which is a recipe for an instantly exciting show. The clothes — floaty bohemian dresses in a patchwork of floral prints ranging from rose to fuchsia, flirty metallic minis and plunging necklines — wouldn't have looked out of place in Studio 54 (the designer's old stomping ground), especially when paired with glossy blue eyeshadow and big bouncy hair. Can you say glam? TINA CHADHA

Think pink

Carolina Herrera is looking at the world through rose-colored glasses. For her spring presentation, held at the stately Frick Collection, the uptown designer offered ladylike organza coats, floral party dresses and pleated ballet skirts in nearly every shade of pink imaginable, from blush to carnation to hot magenta. Pretty! ## Showtime!

Opening Ceremony

Rachel Antonoff

Is it us, or are designers getting way more creative with their presentations this year? Opening Ceremony's models flailed, tripped and two-stepped their way down the runway in a dance inspired by Frank Lloyd Wright. Edun's show included live music from Guinean drummers embedded in the stands: surprise! And Rachel Antonoff set up an elaborate, adorable camp in — wait for it — the Plaza Hotel, complete with paper birds and s'mores roasting on a (faux) campfire. RL & TC

This woman is too fat for modeling?

Agnes Hedengard wants the industry to question the unhealthy standards it has set for models.

ELODIE NOEL
letters@metro.us

For fear of being blacklisted, runway models don't usually speak out about the pressures of staying thin, often dangerously so, to conform to the expectation of the fashion industry. But Swedish model Agnes Hedengard is speaking out about just how unrealistic those standards are for women.

Hedengard, who is 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds, recently posted a video on YouTube called "Too big for the industry."

"I don't get any more jobs because the industry thinks I'm too big," says the 19-year-old, who, with a BMI of 17.5, is medically underweight. "They think my butt is too big, and they think my hips are too wide."

"According to the modeling industry, you cannot look like this. You need to be thinner," continues the model, dressed in just her underwear. The video has had over 3 million views since being posted Aug. 24, and over 2,000 comments.

Hedengard's career began when she was scouted at a festival in 2010, at the age of 15. Though agencies still contact her for jobs, they back out when they see her measurements. "I made this video because I wanted people to know how sick the industry is and that something has to change," she tells Metro.

The first time she was told to lose weight was at the age of 17. The pressure from her agent was so intense that Hedengard would experience panic attacks. Sometimes she'd stop eating after hearing feedback like that, and though she never developed an eating disorder, "I have anorexic thoughts — thoughts where I find myself bigger than I actually am. I see a very different picture of myself in the mirror, and I guess that's not so normal."

Hedengard says the obsession with the too-thin "ideal" has been around the fashion industry for a long time, but no one is questioning it.

So, why do models have to be so thin? "I don't know, actually," Hedengard says. "The only time measurements should be taken is when clients are going to make clothes to fit your size, instead of making you change to fit into the clothes."

Late summer's bounty fuels Fashion Week

Try this healthy, fruity salad being served backstage at New York Fashion Week.

@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

Everyone wants a peek behind the curtains at New York Fashion Week. The little mysteries of how everything comes together are as interesting as what's on the runways.

So what's being served backstage? (Yes, not only do models eat, but their plates are just as of-the-moment as the clothes.) Clean eating that doesn't leave them fainting on the runway is the name of the game, and late summer has plenty of flavors to keep things interesting.

Dig Inn, which brought the farm-to-table concept to fast casual, is making breakfast and lunch for the designers, including Diane Von Furstenberg, Prabal Gurung and Gabriela Hearst. They shared this superfresh, spicy-sweet recipe using our favorite summer fruit, watermelon, which has tons of vitamins A and C, citrulline to replenish muscles and more lycopene, an antioxidant especially beneficial to men's health, than tomatoes.

We'll resist the obvious pun on the restaurant's name and just tell you to try it for yourself.

DIG INN

Watermelon with Mint & Jalapeno

Ingredients:

- 1/2 small watermelon (about 1.5 pounds)
- 2 pounds Persian cucumbers
- 1 minced jalapeño
- 4-5 radishes
- 1 lime, juiced and zested
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 tablespoons roughly chopped mint
- 1/4 cup pickled red onion
- Pinch of sea salt

For pickled onions:

- 1 onion sliced into 1/8-inch rings
- 2 tablespoons agave
- 2 teaspoon sea salt
- 1 cup rice wine vinegar

Directions:

To pickle the onions, combine them with the salt and agave in a nonreactive bowl. Let sit for five minutes, and then cover with the rice wine vinegar. Onions are ready after one hour.

For the salad, cut the watermelon into large cubes. Cut the cucumber in half, then into half moons. Mince the jalapeno (if you like it spicy, leave the seeds in). Place the rest of the ingredients in a bowl and toss to combine. Serve very well chilled.

Games change us for 'SuperBetter'

Jane McGonigal on how we're learning real-world lessons in virtual reality.

@thisiskis
eva.kisk@metro.us

When you think of video games, the impression probably isn't good: mindless button-pushing, no socializing, wasting time. Game designer Jane McGonigal is out to prove that just isn't so.

The U.S. has an estimated gamer population of 183 million. That's not an anomaly, and neither are the reasons we play. McGonigal challenged the perception of who a gamer is in her previous book, "Reality Is Broken."

This time around with "SuperBetter: A Revolutionary Approach to Getting Stronger, Happier, Braver, and More Resilient," on sale today, she investigates the science of gaming using over 500 studies, and how to turn it into a tool for living a better life.

We asked her how picking up a controller can put more control back into our real lives.

The opposite of play

When we think of games as a way to waste time, it's easy to say the opposite of that is working. But McGonigal says that, in fact, it's depression. "When we're playing, we activate the parts of the brain associated with willpower, motivation and optimism," she says. Think about what is actually the opposite of that — lethargy, not feeling like you can change anything — and it begins to shift your perspective.

Bridge the worlds

much time you put in instead of what you get out, it can become toxic. "The No. 1 thing you can do for yourself or a loved one is to make sure that you're able to identify the connections between the game and everyday life," says McGonigal. If you're dealing with someone who may have an issue with gaming, instead of criticizing, try talking to them about the skills, strengths and abilities they may be developing, and how those assets would help them in real life.

Real-world bonding

Many of the benefits of gaming come from their social aspect — so if you want to be better friends with someone, try playing together. "If you play a game in the same physical space with someone, you experience a lot of interesting mind-body synchronization," says McGonigal. "Whether you're cooperating or competing, you're constantly trying to anticipate their actions." This has been shown to increase compassion.

Together, We Can

MLB Power Rankings | by Ryan Hannable

No. 1

Cardinals (89-54)

St. Louis has dropped seven of 10 and is only 2.5 games up over the Pirates in the division. A lock for the postseason, it would be a letdown not to win the division.

No. 2

Pirates (86-56)

Here come the Pirates. Andrew McCutchen's 92 RBI are tied for fourth in the NL for a team that has won seven of its last 10.

No. 3

Royals (84-58)

The Royals aren't playing their best baseball of late, but it doesn't matter all that much as they have the AL Central all but wrapped up.

No. 4

Cubs (82-60)

The Cubs are locks for the wild card as they have a 7.5 game lead for the second spot. The NL Central will have three representatives in the postseason.

No. 5

Dodgers (82-60)

L.A. is led by its starting rotation, as Zack Greinke has an NL-leading 1.61 ERA and Clayton Kershaw is third at 2.15.

No. 6

Mets (82-61)

The Mets keep on rolling as they are the hottest team in baseball, winners of eight straight, and now lead the NL East by 9.5 games.

No. 7

Blue Jays (82-61)

The Blue Jays remain atop the AL East standings, 3.5 games up over the Yanks. Their offense has led them to a plus-198 run differential, best in the majors.

No. 8

Yankees (78-64)

The good thing for the Yankees is if they cannot win the division they will in all likelihood be one of the AL wild-card teams.

No. 9

Astros (77-66)

Houston is battling with the Rangers for the AL West title. The team has dropped six of 10 to allow the Rangers to get back into the race.

No. 10

Rangers (75-67)

As it stands now, the Rangers would be the second wild-card team in the AL. Colby Lewis has quietly had a solid season collecting 15 wins.

No. 11

Giants (75-68)

With the Giants 7.5 games back in the West and the Central running away with the wild card, the Giants are virtually eliminated.

No. 12

Twins (74-68)

Even though the Royals have the division all but wrapped up, the Twins are still in playoff contention as they are a game out in the wild card.

No. 13

Angels (72-70)

With not much time left, the Angels will need to get hot fairly soon (3 back in the wild card). Albert Pujols' 35 home runs are fifth in the AL.

No. 14

Nationals (68-56)

Bryce Harper's 36 homers are not nearly enough to help the most disappointing team in baseball contend for a playoff spot.

JPP'S FIREWORKS INJURY WILL HAVE LASTING REPERCUSSIONS

Last week, Jason Pierre-Paul flew from Miami to New York and met with the Giants for the first time since the Fourth of July fireworks accident that severely damaged his right hand.

We knew that he had his right index finger amputated and there were severe burns as well. According to reports coming out of Florida immediately after the accident, it was believed that the longest recovery time would be six weeks. We now know those reports were false, as JPP is back in South Florida and was not on the field Sunday evening when the Giants blew their season opener in Texas.

Giants coach Tom Coughlin said last week that JPP was in good spirits but not ready to play football. Translation: We're not going to be seeing JPP attack opposing quarterbacks from the edge anytime soon.

There were also reports last week that aside from the known injuries, a portion of one of his other fingers was missing as well. There is speculation within the Giants organization that JPP might not be able to play football for the team at all this season.

Now that we have a little more clarity, we all deal with the ramifications. You have a 26-year-old man who was due to make $14.8 million this season after the Giants gave him the franchise tender.

The Giants certainly could have used Jason Pierre-Paul against the Cowboys Sunday night. / GETTY IMAGES

Now, not only is this season in jeopardy, but maybe his career. JPP was in the prime of his career, as he had 42.5 career sacks entering this year. He was going to be the key piece to a defensive line that was devoid of any other natural pass-rush talent.

Making the playoffs was a goal placed on the shoulders of Coughlin and GM Jerry Reese during the offseason by owner John Mara. Does this now change the mindset of the Giants owner? There is not another player on the Giants roster that can replicate the talent of Jason Pierre-Paul. So as he sits in South Florida and recovers from a choice that not only affects his football future, but also the rest of his life, the Giants forge ahead with questions up and down their roster and with a head coach with past glory but a murky future. It also runs hand-in-hand with a GM who has lived off the 2007 draft for far too long.

It does not appear that this rendition of the Giants is set up for success. Which is a shame, because we know you need talent in the NFL to win and that brings Reese into the conversation. They do have their franchise quarterback, Eli Manning, locked up after he just agreed to a four-year, $84 million dollar contract extension. He is not going anywhere. The coach and the GM are in a different boat, and they may have been seen their futures here in New York vanish when they took one look at the hand of Jason Pierre-Paul.

Location, location, location. If they weren't the three most important words in medical care, they are now. The Mount Sinai Health System provides exemplary care throughout the entirety of the city. In fact, our footprint even extends into Long Island, Westchester, and beyond.

The system includes seven hospitals, more than 140 ambulatory practices, 31 affiliated community health centers, and over 6,100 primary care and specialty physicians.

In addition, Mount Sinai maintains more than 80 relationships with local physicians and group practices serving patients in some 300 community locations throughout the region.

Ironically, our number one mission is to keep people out of the hospital. We're focused on population health management, as opposed to the traditional fee-for-service medicine. So instead of receiving care that's isolated and intermittent, patients receive care that's continuous and coordinated, much of it outside of the traditional hospital setting. Thus the tremendous emphasis on wellness programs designed to help people stop smoking, lose weight and battle obesity, lower their blood pressure and reduce the risk of a heart attack.

Mount Sinai is blurring the line between impossible and possible. Its pioneering research has led to breakthroughs in critical areas like cancer, heart disease and neuroscience. In terms of our stature and reputation, vision and innovation, we'd like to think that no other hospital system comes close to Mount Sinai. You, on the other hand, are closer than you've ever been before.
